OUR STORY

At the origin of the « Brasserie du bout du Monde », there is the dream of one man, Olivier Lallemand, currently heading the brewery. A dream born from his numerous sailor stops around the world that made him discover the diversity and richness of craft beers.

His decision is made, back in Brittany, he will come back to his first love (he used to be a barman in prestigious places) and will set up his own microbrewery. This project will take 3 years of preparation and thinking to gather all the necessary men and skills to develop his beers at his expected level: first choice tasting beers.

And the results are here: since the start of the brewery in 2014, Terenez beers are endorsed in all national and international competitions where they are presented with more than 40 awards at this time. Gourmets are also amazed as evidenced by our uninterrupted growth.

Proud of this recognition, the « Brasserie du bout du Monde » is launching new projects in order to please you even more: new products, new production capacity, international development. The story has just begun

Our brewery, "The brewery at the end of the world" in English, is named from his very specific location at the very end of the western end of European continent. Here we are at the peninsula of Crozon, at the end of Brittany, where land ends and ocean starts. When we come here, we can already feel its power and we understand that soon it will write the rules. We are at the end of the world...

This is here that stand our brewery, in a buried historical site that once was used as ammunition storage. We have to enter into its long undergrounds to discover at its end the place where we are crafting our beers for your greatest satisfaction.
